Congress Gets 17-Billion Naval Supply Bill

1942 Seen As Big Year Of Warfare

Stark Lays Down Plan for Greater Production With Four Salient Points

Calls for Action
Stark Asks 24-Hour, Seven-Day Week for Program

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—Congress received today a $17,222,565,474 appropriations bill, largest in the nation's history, to finance the navy's war objective of attaining unquestioned supremacy above, below and on the seas through a gigantic ship and plane building program.

In sending the huge outlay proposed to the House for debate the appropriations committee dealt in superlatives—"stupendous" and "staggering"—to describe its aims, but expressed full confidence in their accomplishments "with unbelievable dispatch."

An accompanying 313-page transcript of testimony before the committee by Secretary of Navy Knox and high ranking naval officials disclosed their conviction that 1942 would prove the critical year in the battle for victory.

"If we can hold our own, and even advance a little, then we will be ready for whatever the expanded production will enable us to do in 1943 and 1944," said Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet.

Just what that expanded production is intended to "enable us to do" was laid down later by Admiral H. R. Stark, chief of naval operations, in a terse, overall, summation of the navy's hopes and plans to:

Increase its power to the point of unchallengeable supremacy wherever it may operate.

Gain command of the sea by destruction of the enemies' seagoing forces.

Cooperate with our own military forces and with the naval and military forces of our Allies.

Destroy or shut off the enemy's commerce in order to effect economic strangulation, thereby promoting disaffection inside his borders.

The omnibus measure carried an additional $4,292,225,500 in new appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30 and $13,430,339,974 for the year beginning July 1. On top of vast sums already voted for this year, it would swell the 24-month navy total to $24,751,758,471.

It dwarfed even the previous record appropriation of more than $12,500,000,000 for army planes which was passed by the House only last week.

Stark called for a 24-hour day and a seven day week in both government and private shipbuilding yards, and said that the navy had begun a "worker morale" program to increase individual group effort.

Rear Admiral J. H. Towers, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, said the navy was increasing the number of the fleet's plane carriers and auxiliary carriers, and that it planned to speed up naval air factory production of planes from "500 a month to 1,500 a month, 18,000 a year."

Towers criticized the army for placing Hickam air field in Hawaii so close to the navy's Pearl Harbor base. Towers said "on behalf of the whole navy" objections had been made when Hickam Field was built.

"Our (air) field at Pearl Harbor was established in 1917, and we felt that Hickam Field was too close; that it interfered with operations and also it was entirely too exposed to attack from sea," he told the committee.

Committee at Rio Adopts Proposal To Assist Allies

U. S. and Other Americas Are Non-Belligerents Under Plan; Atlantic Charter Favored

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 26 (AP)—The political committee of the Pan American conference adopted today a proposal to declare the United States and all her American Allies non belligerents, and approved the principles of the Atlantic charter which embodied the war aims of the United States and Britain.

Action on both resolutions was unanimous.

At the committee meeting representatives of Paraguay and Bolivia announced formally that their governments, following the recommendation of the conference, had severed diplomatic and economic relations with the Axis.

Delegates cheered the announcement which raised to 17 the number of American Republics which have broken off with Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

Also approved were resolutions calling for an immediate meeting of the general staffs of all American nations, and proposing that no American nation represent the interests of a warring government not on this continent in any other American nation.

This last resolution on representation of foreign interests was drafted in sub-committee to get around objections by Argentina to its phrasing.

The proposal for a meeting of general staffs suggested that there should be formed at once a "commission composed of military or naval technicians named by each government to study and suggest measures necessary for defense of the continent." The commission would meet in Washington.

The approval by the 21 American nations of the principles of the Atlantic charter was expressed in a new "charter of Rio de Janeiro" drawn up by the committee.

It was stated, however, that the approval was expressed as the united action of the Americas and not as a declaration aligning the nations with any non-American power.

Dr. Eduardo Anze Matinez, Bolivian Foreign Minister, declared today that his government already had drawn up a decree severing relations with the Axis, which would make Bolivia the seventeenth American nation to break with Germany, Italy and Japan.

He said that although he had not yet received word of the signing of the decree in accord with the recommendation of the Pan American conference, his government had authorized him to make the announcement.

He said he would notify his fellow foreign ministers and delegates to the conference at the sessions today while the last problems of the conference—including creation of an inter-American defense board—are being ironed out.

U. S. Armed Forces Arrive in Ireland

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—Arrival of American Army forces in Northern Ireland was announced today by Secretary of War Stimson.

Major General Russell P. Hartle is in command, it was announced, but the size of the force and other details were withheld.

Specifically withheld were designation of the units, their composition and strength, the ports of embarkation and dates of sailing.

The force was the first to reach the British Isles since the war started aside from groups of technicians and staff officers, officials indicated.

Port Ewen Boys Are Saved After Falling Into River

Henry Schmidt, Vernon Smith, Also of Port Ewen, Rescue Pair From Drowning

Robert Fiske and William Doyle of Port Ewen, both 14, had a narrow escape from drowning in the cold Hudson river water Saturday afternoon when they broke through the ice while attempting to walk across the river off the Michael Tucker dock. After struggling in the water for a time they were rescued by two other Port Ewen boys who had been summoned to the scene by calls for help.

Members of the Port Ewen Fire Department were summoned to the scene and aided in bringing the boys to shore.

Henry Schmidt and Vernon Smith of Port Ewen, who were target shooting along the river heard the cries of the two as they were thrown in the water when the ice broke under their feet.

They went to the aid of the boys with their jackets, which they attached to their rifle and used as a rescue rope, the two boys were finally brought to safety and aided toward shore where members of the Port Ewen Fire Department, who had arrived at the scene, took the two to their homes.

Despite their cold bath the boys seemed to be in fair condition and refused hospital treatment. Last night young Fiske was suffering from shock but apparently the two escaped serious consequences.

According to the information given the fire department members, the two started to cross the river from Port Ewen and when about half way across and near the middle channel of the river the ice gave way. Warm weather of the past few days had thinned the ice and the action of the tide had eaten away the ice from underneath.

As they were thrown into the cold water the two tried to regain

Atlantic Sinkings Have Real Value in Killing Smugness

Despite Good Week-End for American Arms, War Is Not Over; U. S. Too Complacent

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Wide World War Analyst)

The British reserve in Libya after they had a great victory well within their grasp is sufficiently puzzling to draw from an official Fascist spokesman in Rome today the remark that "it is not quite clear what has happened to the powerful British army."

One thing would seem to be certain—either the British forces have been weakened or the German strength has been greatly increased. We know what General Rommel, the Nazi commander, has received reinforcements very recently. However, there has been no indication that he has acquired enough new strength to explain the British retreat. It therefore strikes me that the British have been weakened.

Why? There has been an insistent demand for reinforcements at Singapore, and we know that at least British warplanes have been arriving in the Orient. While there is no official information to back the idea, it's not unreasonable to assume that the British have weakened themselves in Libya in order to send aid to the battle of Singapore.

Thus we have an example of the delicacy of the operation of transferring strength from one war theater to another under conditions now existing.

An increase in Allied striking power, apparently indicative of growing air reinforcements, has contributed to a somewhat more satisfactory position for the United Nations in the battle of the Pacific—and American arms have had a good week-end.

The great and still continuing defeat administered to the Japanese in the Strait of Macassar by combined American and Dutch forces—warships from our British fleet with United States and Dutch warplanes—has struck heavily at the Japanese advance towards the Dutch East Indies.

Here the Japs have suffered a real disaster—their first. More than twenty Nipponese warships and transports loaded with troops have been sunk or damaged, and the Allied attack was continuing most successfully today, with American flying fortresses reported in action.

One of the brightest spots has been General MacArthur's brilliant counter-attack in which he outwitted the Japanese and broke up an elaborate offensive which threatened the existence of his little force. It was a superb job of soldiering, and means a further delay to the Japanese program.

In other words MacArthur and his minute men continued to slow the Japs down and give the allies time to get reinforcements into the Orient—reinforcements which are

Congress Is Stirred by Findings

Members Would Expel 'Incompetents' Who Are to Blame for Hawaii Debacle

Change Is Urged
Super-Command Over Both Services Asked at Capital

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—Angry demands came from Congress members today for the expulsion of any "incompetents" holding responsible positions in the war effort and for courts martial to mete out punishment on those responsible for the debacle of Pearl Harbor.

A furor of rare bitterness on both sides of capitol hill followed the week-end report of a presidential investigation commission, blaming non-cooperation and "dereliction of duty" by Hawaii area commanders of the army and navy for success of the Japanese sneak attack on the great Pacific naval base.

Many senators and representatives asserted that the commission's conclusions pointed to a pressing need for a super-command with control over the operations of both armed services.

Although the investigating commission decided that the secretaries of state, war and navy as well as the army chief of staff and chief of naval operations had "fulfilled their obligations," some congress members professed to find fault with provisions made here for Hawaii's defense.

The five-man commission, headed by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the Supreme Court, reported to President Roosevelt that "errors of judgement" by Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, commander of the army's Hawaiian department, and Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander of the Pacific fleet and commander in chief of the whole fleet, "were the effective causes for the success of the attack."

It concluded that the two officers had shown "a lack of appreciation of the responsibilities vested in them," especially since each had been warned by his superiors in Washington that relations with Japan were critical. Both were relieved of their commands soon after the attack, pending the outcome of the investigation.

No immediate word of contemplated action came from the White House or the army and navy departments. The departments could order Short and Kimmel to face a court martial, or President Roosevelt could dismiss them from the service for "dereliction of duty." They could appeal to a court martial, if the chief executive took that course.

Asked what action was likely now, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters: "I don't know what action there is to be taken."

On the question of a court martial, he said it was his recollection that any general officer might request one if he thought he had a case. Responding to a remark that the President might dismiss officers if he felt it justified, Early said he did not think "it is done that way."

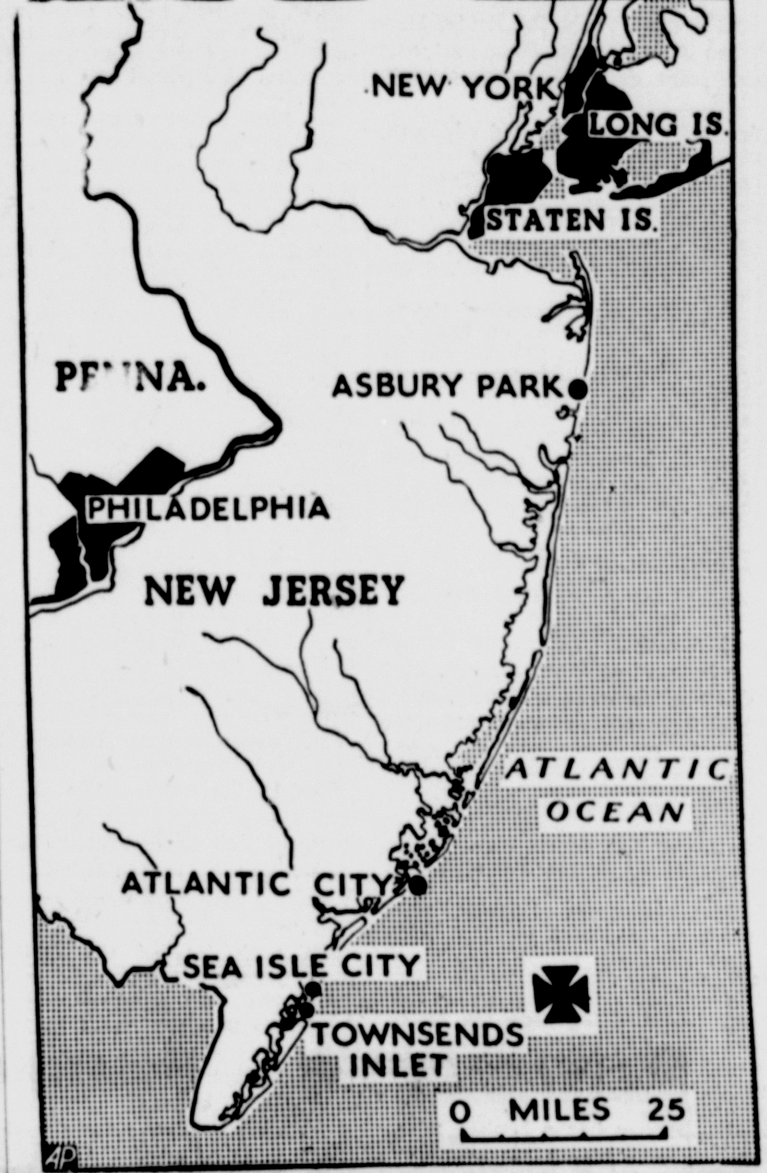

The secretary of war or navy could order a court martial by the direction of the President, he said, but the phrase "by the direction of the President," is only a formality.

Early said that Mr. Roosevelt, to his knowledge, had not yet discussed the Roberts report with his war and navy secretaries.

The presidential secretary suggested that the people who know the answer be asked a question whether General Short and Admiral Kimmel could continue to draw pay and hold rank.

MacArthur Is 62 Today, Celebrates In Critical Warfare

Spectacular Victory Over Japanese Marks Date for Philippine Chief; Triumph Hailed

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur, the jaunty beau sabreur of an already historic Philippines campaign, celebrated his sixty-second birthday today in the thick of the fighting on a crucial war front.

His personality, martial spirit and record as a soldier make it evident that he would prefer no finer setting for the occasion.

MacArthur and his indomitable little army of American and Filipino troops made the birthday anniversary a doubly auspicious event by registering a spectacular victory yesterday in a counter-attack which shattered the lines of a heavily superior enemy.

The War Department, normally restrained in its language, used the words "smashing success" to hail the MacArthur triumph which further dislocated the Japanese timetable for conquest in the south Pacific.

The official communique's reference to the operation as a "brilliant maneuver" testified to the admiration felt by official Washington and the nation for his last ditch fight in the Philippines.

Armada Is Struck Near Java Coast

Big Battle in Macassar Strait Might Have Killed Attempted Jap Raid on Java

U. S. Planes Aid

American Flying Craft Sink Big Rising Sun Transport

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH (Associated Press War Editor)

United States and Dutch sea and air forces, locked in a great, running battle with a Japanese invasion armada in the Strait of Macassar, have sunk or damaged upwardly of 30—and perhaps 33—transports and warships in the four days of fighting and may have shattered an attempt to invade Java, the heart of the united nations defense in the southwest Pacific.

The next few days will tell in what strength if any the Japanese armada was able to negotiate the narrow shortcut to the inner arc of the Netherlands East Indies.

The Japanese, however, won at least one foothold on this sea road to Java—the Dutch oil port of Balikpapan, on the strait-side of the island of Borneo, but the size of the invasion fleet indicated that Tokyo was shooting for higher stakes to the south.

The Strait of Macassar is the most direct route between Japanese concentration points in the Philippines and the rich island of Java on which the united nations have centered their supreme command and much of their armed strength.

Soerabaja, the great Dutch naval base, for example, lies less than 350 miles southwest of the southern mouth of the strait.

The score against the Japanese in the Macassar Straits battle, as thus far reported in the communiqués from the Java headquarters, Batavia and Washington, follows:

Destroyed
Nine transports, one destroyer, Probably Sunk
Six transports.
Damaged (Excluding Probable Sinkings)

A warship, unclassified as to type, five cruisers, two destroyers, nine transports.

The damaged ships included a cruiser which may have gone down. The submarine which torpedoed it was so resisted that it was impossible for its command to determine the result of the hit.

The battle started on Thursday afternoon when Dutch airmen, roaring out from their jungle-cladded bases, scored 12 direct hits with heavy and medium caliber bombs on eight ships.

United States naval and air forces joined in the attack on the following day and the hot, equatorial waters of Macassar Strait were churned by bombs and torpedoes from flying fortresses, light and heavy bombers, submarines, cruisers and destroyers.

Slight damage to one United Nations warship was the only naval damage acknowledged so far as the cruiser's attack.

The losses inflicted on the Japanese were the heaviest of any counter-action since the Japanese launched their grand offensive in the southwest Pacific region on December 7.

Unceasing attacks by American Dutch air and naval forces have sent at least one more Japanese destroyer and another large transport to the bottom in the Macassar Strait, it was announced today.

These were only the minimum claims of the Dutch and United Nations' southwest Pacific commands.

American flying fortresses, besides sinking a big rising sun transport, also scored a bomb hit on a cruiser, and Dutch planes cooperating in the same action scored a total of four direct hits on two Japanese cruisers and another transport, Allied headquarters said.

Independently, the Dutch communique reported that a Netherlands submarine, in addition to sinking a Japanese destroyer, scored a torpedo hit on a cruiser but, in the face of a violent counter-attack, could not wait to see whether the blow was fatal.

The American and Dutch forces previously had exacted a tremendous toll of the enemy in the narrow straits where a huge Japanese expeditionary force apparently was ambushed and trapped between the Dutch Islands of Borneo and Celebes.

Two Boys Make Successful Rescue

Robert Fiske (third left) and William Doyle (second left) of Port Ewen undoubtedly will never forget their attempt to cross the Hudson last Saturday afternoon, nor will they forget two other Port Ewen youths, Henry Schmidt (left) and Vernon Smith (right) who were successful in rescuing them from the icy waters of the river. Fiske and Doyle were attempting to walk over the ice of the river to the east shore. They fell through and the two other boys at target practice along the west shore heard their cries for help and went quickly to their aid.

Axis Forces Threaten Bengasi And Drive British Back 40 Miles

Success Puzzles Axis Forces Which Can't Figure How Attack Netted Such Gains

Huge Losses Are Inflicted Upon Anglo Forces, Italians Say; Russians Continue Mop-Up From Smolensk to Orel

(By The Associated Press)

Bengasi in North Africa again was threatened today by Axis forces which had developed their "reconnaissance in force" of last week into a full-scale offensive.

The British admitted the main battle was now in the Zoulet Msus area, which meant they had been driven back 40 miles since yesterday and 145 miles from the westernmost point of their advance in the El Agheila area.

Zoulet Msus is only about 70 miles southeast of Bengasi which the British captured on Christmas Day in their second Libyan offensive.

That the Axis itself was somewhat puzzled by its own success was indicated by a Rome spokesman who spoke of the Axis "improvised counterattack" and said "it is not quite clear what has happened to the powerful British army. While it is true that the nature of the terrain in Cirenaica calls for long-range operations, this would not be a sufficient explanation for the retreat."

The Italian high command claimed huge losses had been inflicted, including the destruction or capture of 239 tanks and armored cars and 158 guns.

Heavy Reinforcements

It was evident that the Germans and Italians were rushing heavy reinforcements and that the British may be in for an even more difficult time.

The Italians announced the arrival of another important convoy at Tripoli, despite heavy British bombing and torpedo attacks which were acknowledged to have sunk one large liner.

The Germans said Malta had been bombed heavily again, and eight British fighter planes shot down. They said their bombers also intercepted a British fleet near Tobruk and hit a light cruiser.

Russian soldiers fighting their way forward in the coldest weather in decades were reported mopping up vast areas of the Russian front after virtually wiping out the winter line established by Adolf Hitler.

Russians Are Busy

Russian reports said clean-up operations were in full swing in the section east of a 270-mile line running from the vicinity of Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow to Orel and Kursk.

There was no information just how far the Russians were from Smolensk but the British radio broadcast a Stockholm report that Hitler had moved his headquarters from Smolensk 200 miles west to Minsk, capital of White Russia.

The Russians said the Moscow

U.S. to Allow Pound of Sugar

Weekly Ration for Each Individual Begins in February

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—The government made ready today to ration sugar at the rate of approximately a pound per person per week, probably starting early in February.

Leon Henderson, the price administrator, announced Saturday that ration books were being prepared. He said there was a shortage of one-third in the sugar supply, which in 1941 was sufficient to provide a per capita home consumption of a pound and a half a week.

He hinted that some attempt would be made to recover stocks held by hoarders, saying "consumers who are in possession of abnormally large stocks of sugar are warned that they will not be permitted to gain an advantage from their supposed foresight."

Industrial sugar consumption, which averaged 40 pounds a person in 1941, will be cut to 27 pounds. Henderson said sugar supplies from all sources this year probably will total 5,300,000 short tons, compared with 7,989,000 in 1941.

In normal times the United States obtains 2,000,000 tons a year from the Philippines, whose exports are cut off entirely, and Hawaii, whose output will be cut in half.

The R.F.C. has purchased Cuba's entire crop to offset these losses as far as possible, but much of the Cuban sugar will go to allies of the U.S. and domestic producers of alcohol for war uses.

Within the chapter the primary duty of the motor corps is to render service for regular chapter activities. This service comes under the following headings:

At chapter headquarters, the motor corps may:

Collect and distribute material and garments for war relief and to other production activities.

Provide routine transportation for supplies and chapter workers.

Assist in transportation of instructors and equipment.

Provide transportation for workers and material during roll call and other campaigns.

Provide transportation for nurses, first aid and water safety staff members in times of epidemic and disaster.

Furnish transportation in connection with the blood plasma program.

In disaster relief, the motor corps may:

Air Corps training school, was visited at Camp Upton by his sister, Mrs. John Flaherty and children of 72 Summer street, where he made his home, Miss Eileen Rice and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rice.

To Hold Party

The regular monthly party of the teachers, officers and older pupils of the Rondout Presbyterian Sunday School will be held in the chapel of the church on Tuesday evening, commencing at 7:45 o'clock. All members of the congregation interested in the work of the Sunday school are invited to attend the party. There will be a series of games and contests as well as a movie during the evening, and at the close refreshments will be served. Stahl Is Fined

Ellsworth Stahl of Margaretville, arrested by Troopers Dunn and Maish on a charge of reckless driving, following an accident at Shandaken Saturday afternoon, was fined $5 when arraigned before Justice Flavius Dibblel.

The officers said that Stahl fell asleep at the wheel and his Ford truck crossed the road on a curve and hit a truck driven by Frank Tyler, Sr., who is employed by the Ulster County Highway Department.

Tyler sustained a fracture of the left arm, for which he was treated by Dr. Charles A. Quinn of Phoenixia.

Changes Allowed On Gormley Claim By Court's Order

Segregation of the purported damages to the Gormley mill site and the Gormley quarry premises on the upper Esopus at Shandaken in accordance with an order of Justice Francis Bergan, has been made by members of Esopus Commission before whom the matter of damages was originally heard in a claim against the city of New York for damage to Parcel 17, owned by Eugene Gormley.

His claim was heard by Commissioner Bergan on Jan. 17, 1940, when the award for damages is broken down and the amount of damages to the mill site and the remainder of the parcel are indicated separately.

Mr. Gormley, owner of a parcel on the upper Esopus creek on which was located a mill and dam and also a quarry, filed a claim for $25,000 damages resulting from the introduction of the Gilboa Reservoir waters into the Esopus through the Shandaken tunnel.

Reports of American-Dutch bombing blasts at Japanese warships in the far Pacific apparently heartened Wall Street but such buying as appeared was attributed mainly to individual situations having to do with earnings prospects. The claimant, Gormley, indicated by witnesses a gross damage of $37,107. Of this $35,500 was for damage to the fee, exclusive of the quarry and mill site; $3,400 for trespass damage of that quarry; $4,000 for the quarry; $22,857 for damage done to the dam and $1,350 for damage to the mill site generally. Of this gross sum nearly 70 per cent or $24,207 had been claimed for damage to the mill site.

Report Sent Back

Since the commissioners made no segregation of these two separate branches of the claim in their awards but made a general award of $1,850 for damages to the fee and $900 for trespass, Justice Bergan sent the matter back to the commission to segregate the claims and apportion the award between the mill and dam and the damages to the other lands.

The commission has since heard testimony in addition to that previously heard and now makes its report.

The commissioners now award $850 with interest for damages to the dam and mill site between February 6, 1924 and March 13, 1936, and for acquiring the right in perpetuity to interfere with the flow of the creek $750 and interest.

With respect to the other lands of the claimant, including the quarry, the commissioners allow $500 for the damages from February 6, 1924 and March 13, 1936, to the claimant with interest, and as compensation for the right in perpetuity to the balance of the land, exclusive of the mill and dam site, the sum of $1,100 with interest.

An allowance of $597.96 for expenses is made, of which the witness McCaffery is allowed $188.96. Thus the total award in the last report was $3,200 while the original award was $2,750. The expense allowance is also slightly increased.

Charles W. Walton appeared for the claimant and Henry R. Bright and Vincent G. Connelly for the city.

SKATES FOR SALE

Full twenty years have slipped away since last I thrilled the skating ice. When "figure-eight" was easy play completely made in just a trice.

The youngsters quickly donned their own. Reminding me of careless claims. Demanding that my skill be shown. Where clever skaters carve their names. The tricks that once were done with ease. And all my joints in sudden pain. And winds that whipped across my knees. Belittled all my efforts vain.

The youngsters laughed in sheer delight. At every unexpected spill. And all my boasts had taken flight. When evening shadows crossed the hill. 'Til what another twenty years. Before I spin another tale. And fill confused three little tears. I have "A pair of skates for sale."

U. S., Dutch Score On 30 Jap Ships

by the action reported from Washington and Java raised the possibility that the United Nations had blocked the retreat of the hapless expedition and was systematically cutting it to pieces.

There was a confused picture of the destruction wrought in the Macassar fighting but the supreme command of the United Nations in the southern Pacific gave this accolade to the fighters:

"The losses inflicted on this Japanese convoy are the heaviest the enemy has suffered in any single operation since the war began."

Fighting ships of the U. S. Asiatic fleet have sent seven Japanese vessels to the bottom and Dutch and American bombers, some of them likely based on secret Dutch bases in Borneo, accounted for at least another two. Five more sinkings were listed as probable.

Perhaps for military reasons, the exact extent of the havoc was left in doubt by the week-end communiques issued in Washington and the south Pacific. But it was made clear that the Allied attackers escaped almost without a scratch—one warship sustained slight damage and no planes were lost.

The one-two punch fighting—first of a smash from the air, then a blow from the warships—developed as follows, the communiques reported:

Friday—Dutch planes scored a dozen direct, crippling hits on eight enemy ships out of a strong force of warships and transports; U. S. destroyers following with a night attack blew one large enemy ship out of the water, sank another and left a third listing heavily.

Two More Sinkings
Saturday—Dutch and U. S. army bombers scored two more known sinkings, the severe damage to two more enemy vessels, and a direct hit on a Japanese destroyer.

Sunday—U. S. cruisers and destroyers sank five more Japanese transports and claimed the probable of a sixth.

Only two probable sinkings and 11 damaged ships show up in that running account but the Allied command in the south Pacific estimated that the probable sinkings numbered four and the ships damaged less than 12. A later U. S. navy communique added the fifth probable sinking.

Americans cheered another brilliant action in the western Pacific—what the U. S. War Department officially called the "smashing success" of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's soldiers in a counter-attack upon the Japanese.

As if setting up a birthday anniversary present for the general, his soldiers yesterday hit the unprepared Japanese on his extreme right while they were concentrating on developing an attack on MacArthur's other flank and drove the Japanese from their positions in disorder.

Hundreds of Dead
The War Department said the Japanese left hundreds of dead and large quantities of supplies and equipment on the battlefield.

The maneuver relieved the pressure on the left but the war department acknowledged that the Japanese, pouring men into the battle to crush MacArthur, could be expected to renew the attack as soon as a reorganization is effected.

General MacArthur celebrated his 62nd birthday anniversary today.

In the Malayan battle for Singapore, the Japanese pounded steadily with the help of swarms of bombers, and the British acknowledged that the invaders had captured Batu Pahat, the western anchor of the British defense line, 60 miles northwest of Singapore.

Earlier there were reports that the Japanese had resorted once more to their familiar infiltration tactics to turn the British left flank at Batu Pahat.

Fighting along was heavy near Kluang, 50 miles north of Singapore, where the Japanese are attempting to move down the main railroad to Singapore.

Sighted by British
The British said that early this morning an enemy convoy including warships and two merchant ships, was sighted by British planes off Endau, 85 miles north of Singapore on the Malayan east coast. The British already have fallen back from Endau.

No Japanese activity was reported by the British from the Mersing area, 20 miles south of Endau. British reports yesterday said the Japanese were held on the north bank of the Mersing river.

The Japanese said yesterday they had captured the town of Mersing, and Parit Sulong, a town 67 miles northeast of Singapore.

The British made no attempt to minimize the seriousness of the situation along the 80-90 mile front but declared that there were "some nasty surprises" in store for the Japanese.

Trouble for the Japanese appeared in the making in Southern China and Burma.

Masses of Chinese troops were reported gathering along the Yunnan border and in Burma in positions which would put them in line for an attack on French Indo-China and Thailand, both occupied by the Japanese.

Airmen of the United Nations dumped tons of explosives on Japanese bases at Bangkok, Thailand, and Hanoi, Indo-China, during the week-end.

The British, meanwhile, fell back in the Moulmein, 100 miles east of Rangoon, before the "sheer weight of numbers" of the Japanese.

Domei, Japanese news agency, reported in a dispatch from Bangkok that Thailand declared war on Great Britain and the United States yesterday and had ordered 100,000 Thai troops to advance into Burma.

The dispatch made no mention of the fact that Thai troops already have been in action with the Japanese against British Burma.

In the Australian area, a com-

ACCUSED OF 'DERELICTION OF DUTY'

A special commission which investigated the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor December 7, accused the commander-in-chief of the fleet, Admiral Husband E. Kimmel (left) and the commanding general of the Hawaiian department, Lieutenant General Walter C. Short (right), of "dereliction of duty" in a blame-fixing report to President Roosevelt.

munique from Melbourne admitted the Japanese occupation of Kavieng, in New Ireland, and the Japanese in Tokyo announced the town had been completely taken over.

The Dutch acknowledged new Japanese landings at Kendari, in southern Celebes and at the ruined Borneo oil port of Balikpapan. Sharp resistance was reported.

In the Atlantic, an enemy submarine sank the Norwegian tanker Varanger in a pre-dawn attack yesterday off New Jersey but the crew of 42 was saved.

Trailer-Truck and Auto Collision Jams Traffic

A collision between a truck and trailer and a passenger car, on the hill south of the Port Ewen bridge about 7:30 o'clock this morning, blocked traffic on 9-W at that point for some three-quarters of an hour.

The trouble started when a truck and trailer driven by Gaines Simms of Plainville, N. J., collided with a car driven by Edgar Pilz of Port Ewen, after the latter had skidded on the pavement made slippery by the hard-packed light snowfall.

The car wound up partly in the ditch and partly on the road, with the truck and trailer blocking the rest of the highway. The sheriff's office was called and Deputy Sheriff Dewitt and Tinnie were sent out. They called the highway department and took charge of the traffic jam, which extended back for half a mile.

As soon as the hill was sanded both the car and truck were able to move on and the traffic snarl was untangled.

Mrs. Somervell Dies
Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—The death of Mrs. Anna P. Somervell, wife of Brigadier General Brehon B. Somervell, at Walter Reed Hospital last night was announced today by the war department. Mrs. Somervell, who was born in Chicago on November 13, 1885, had been ill since January 14. General Somervell, former W.P.A. administrator in New York and later chief of the construction division in the office of the quartermaster general, now is assistant chief of staff in charge of supply.

Port Ewen Boys Are Saved After Falling Into River

solid ice but the edges broke away and they were repeatedly thrown back. At one time Doyle, after being thrown back to the icy water several times, was able to climb out on a floating cake of ice but when it appeared he was about to gain safety the cake of ice broke up and he was thrown back to the water.

Schmidt and Smith hearing the cries for aid went out on the ice and by crawling on their stomachs were able with the aid of an improvised rescue rope to bring the boys to safety. When Schmidt and Smith reached the scene one of the boys had been able to gain secure ice, but the extreme cold water had made further efforts difficult.

Meanwhile, George Trinkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Trinkle, heard the calls for help and they notified Mr. Joseph J. Hovers who summoned the fire department.

Under the direction of Acting Chief Cleon Jump the truck was driven to the Tucker dock and firemen armed with stretchers, rope, ice hooks and other equipment went out on the ice. Because of the poor condition of the ice it was necessary for the men to proceed with great caution. Two of the men went on ahead and aided the two youths back to the rescue party. The two were taken ashore and rushed to their homes by Lieut. Charles Wesley of the fire department.

When they were first rescued from the water they were so cold and exhausted they were unable to walk but aided by Schmidt and Smith they recovered sufficiently to firemen met them and brought them back to the main rescue party.

Acting Chief Jump said the ice on the river was extremely treacherous, having been weakened by the past few days warm weather and it was impossible for the larger party of rescuers to get out to the place where the two boys had been rescued because of the excessive weight on the dangerous ice. He praised the work of the two who rescued the boys from the river and also the work of the two men who went out to join them and complete the rescue.

42 Sailors Are Safe After Torpedoing Of Ship Off Coast

craft engaged in the attack but added this was not confirmed. Dr. Alexander Stuart of Sea Isle City, who treated the injured, said practically all of the crew members reported having seen three submarines in the vicinity of the ship before the first torpedo struck. There was no indication of the nationality of the submarines.

The Varanger was the sixth vessel sunk by submarines in Atlantic coast waters of the United States within the last 12 days. A seventh, shelled and damaged, reached port.

It was the second Norwegian sunk by the torpedoes in as many days in the Atlantic. Five survivors of a freighter were landed yesterday at an eastern Canadian port after 14 hours in lifeboats.

The explosions of the first torpedo took from the ship the only means of replying to the attack—a four-inch gun. The blast also knocked overboard the radio boom.

Seven minutes later at 3:17 a. m., the second torpedo struck and the third followed five minutes later. The ship went down immediately after the third blow. An internal explosion shook the ship before she sank, crew members said.

Raider Attacks Ore Carrier

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 26 (AP)—An Axis undersea raider attacked the American ore carrier Venore off the North Atlantic coast late Friday and 22 members of the crew are unaccounted for, the Fifth Naval District announced today.

Twenty-one members of the crew were brought ashore last night at Norfolk.

The ship, owned by the Ore Steamship Company, was hit at least twice by torpedoes Friday and it sank in the Atlantic Saturday morning, the Navy said.

Gardiner Hotel Damaged by Fire

Blaze Discovered on Third Floor Sunday Morning

The Gardiner Hotel, located opposite the Wallkill Valley depot in Gardiner, was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars by fire and water early Sunday morning.

The building is a four-story structure, with a hall and lodge room on the upper floor. The fire, which was discovered about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning, at that time was burning on the third floor and from there spread through the second floor. The interiors of both the second and third stories, with furniture and equipment were badly damaged. Much of the damage was caused by the large quantities of water necessarily used to get the blaze under control, which also caused more or less damage to the first floor furnishings and walls.

In addition to the Gardiner Fire Department the departments from New Paltz, Plattekill and Modena responded to calls for help.

The hotel was built by Floyd McKinstry, shortly after the building of the Wallkill Valley Railroad. Later it was for years run by Thomas Callahan and was a very popular stopping place for commercial men. Some years ago the property was purchased by Thomas Moran and Arthur Dodd, who have since conducted the hotel.

The hall has been the scene of many interesting political gatherings, one of them, an assembly convention some 40 years ago, being close to a record for such a gathering in Ulster county. 26 ballots being taken before Solomon P. Thorn of Plattekill finally was chosen as the Republican nominee. The chief contender against him at that time was William D. Cunningham, who the next year received the nomination.

Rensselaer Man Is Held After Auto Hits Tree

Thomas Ruskie, 25, of 36 Washington street, Rensselaer, was arrested Sunday night by the police charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated, after his car had left the road and crashed into a tree in front of the residence of Robert B. Evory of 147 O'Neil street. Mrs. Ruskie, who was riding with her husband, suffered a broken nose and cuts on her head.

According to the police report Ruskie was driving over O'Neil street when his car plunged up over the curb and across the sidewalk into the tree. The injured woman was taken into the Evory home where she was treated by Dr. George W. Ross of Port Ewen, and later was taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Short, 34 Boulevard. Ruskie furnished bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance in police court today at which time he pleaded guilty to the charge of drunken driving.

Judge Matthew V. Cahill imposed a fine of $50 and revoked Ruskie's operator's license.

Taxi Drivers' Stand

January 26, 1942.
Editor, The Freeman:

Will you kindly permit me space to state the taxi drivers' stand in our dispute with the Roosa Taxi Service.

We are still out on our request for an increase in wages and will return to work, accepting the compromise wage increase, provided that the four men, who have been discharged since the wage increase request, are re-employed.

A number of the men discharged have families and we believe they should be given the opportunity to return to work.

Yours truly,

Teacher at N. Y. A. Center Is Injured in Accident

Mrs. Verda Frey of New York City, a resident teacher at the N. Y. A. center in Woodstock, was seriously injured about 8:30 o'clock this morning when her car struck a telephone pole near the Woodstock Golf course.

She was treated by Dr. Hans Cohn of Woodstock and then taken to the Kingston Hospital by Deputy Sheriff Herbert Segelken, who investigated the accident. In addition to a severe compound fracture of the right ankle, Mrs. Frey suffered from bruises about the head and body.

Mrs. Frey left New York about 4:30 o'clock this morning to drive to Woodstock. Opposite the golf course, just after she had made the turn, her car skidded on the slippery pavement, struck a Central Hudson pole, which was broken completely off and then plunged down the embankment onto the golf course. The entire front construction and the right side of the car was demolished.

Light Snow Halts Traffic in City

Two Large Trucks Skid on Broadway Hill

Slippery road conditions followed the fall of an inch of snow in Kingston this morning, and as a result traffic was slowed up considerably until the street department trucks loaded with sand were placed at work sanding the intersections.

On the Broadway hill two large trailer trucks were stuck and traffic was halted until the hill was sanded so that the trucks could proceed.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning on the Broadway hill near Stuyvesant street a taxi operated by Morris Goldman of 115 Hone street, skidded into an auto operated by Davis Mannello, 17, of Port Ewen. Both cars were damaged but there were no personal injuries reported to the police.

Following the springlike temperatures that have prevailed the last few days the thermometer dropped last night to below freezing.

The snow was wet and sticky that fell and under the wheels of heavy traffic it became packed. Saturday the highest temperature was recorded since January 2, when the official city thermometer recorded 51 degrees at 3 o'clock that afternoon. On January 2 a high of 55 degrees was recorded. The highest point reached Sunday was 38 degrees.

Legion Would Aid All County Units For Registration

The President of the United States has called upon Selective Service Boards throughout the country to register February 14, 15, and 16, all men between the ages of 20 and 45, who are not already registered.

Realizing that registration of millions of citizens in the various age groups will prove a Herculean task for the board, Commander Chester Bradford representing the Ulster county Legion Organization, contacted all Post Commanders suggesting the placement of Legionnaires at the services of local Selective Boards within their respective communities to assist in the tremendous task of registration that will confront the boards on February 14, 15, and 16.

Stanley H. Dempsey, Commander of Kingston Post 150, of the American Legion, immediately set in motion a group of volunteers who will hold themselves in readiness to the call of the chairman of Kingston's Selective Service Board. In submitting the names of the Legion volunteers, Commander Dempsey assured the chairman of the board that he considers it both an honor and privilege to place Kingston's Legion Post at the service of the community.

County Commander Bradford stated that all requests for voluntary assistance in the registration effort of the Selective Service Boards will be answered by the Legion membership with a ready and whole-hearted response.

BONDS FROM CURRENT INCOME

According to the Savings Banks' Association of the State of New York savings bank customers are using their savings instead of current income to buy defense bonds and stamps. This is a patriotic gesture but it does not carry out the plans of the government, which are to provide money for prosecuting the war and at the same time lessen the tendency toward inflation by decreasing purchases.

Transfer of money already saved in bank accounts to another form of saving is working at cross-purposes with one of the main objectives of the defense savings program. The appeal is for purchase of defense savings stamps and bonds out of current income. One of the reasons for the issuance of stamps in small denominations is to give all citizens an opportunity to share in the plan of buying stamps and bonds from their current income. Full cooperation will only be reached when citizens spend less and invest the excess in defense stamps and bonds.

Henry Bruere, president of the Savings Banks Association, explains that withdrawal of savings to buy defense bonds and stamps merely means that the savings banks have less money to put in government securities. When faced with withdrawals, the banks have to sell government securities to replenish cash reserves.

FROM CARS TO PLANES

John C. Widman of the Murray Corp. of America thinks the turning of many plants now making automobile parts to airplane parts manufacture may prove permanent. The conversion may be a one-way road. He recently told the Society of Automotive Engineers:

"It is not beyond reason to suppose that the concentrated course in aircraft which the automobile industry is now undergoing will have lasting effect on the industry. I believe that some of the larger automotive manufacturers have been contemplating for some time the entrance into the aircraft field. By the time this national emergency is over, there will be a large number of trained personnel available for future use."

"The automotive companies always have a highly competitive market. There is no doubt that with new plants, equipment and personnel available they can attempt to take their place with others in the aircraft field."

The great development of the automobile came right after the last war. Large numbers of young men are now learning to fly, more and more of the general public coming to take transportation by air as a normal matter, all in the day's work. It is easy to imagine a tremendous development in air travel not many years hence.

CALLING ALL CARS

The owner or operator of an automobile, truck or motorcycle using the public highways must have affixed to his motor vehicle not later than February 1, 1942, a Federal use tax stamp. Failure to do so makes such owner or operator liable to the penalty provided by law.

Stamps are now on sale at the main post office and at the two sub-stations here, which are conveniently located for all residents. The cost of the stamp is $2.09 for the five months period ending June 30, 1942.

Avoid the rush and the penalty by purchasing your stamp at once.

FACE-SAVING

Some deep thinkers regard the present Japanese war as primarily an adventure in "face-saving," and maybe they are right. This view seems to be assumed in a recent statement from Premier Tojo. Japanese statesmen and military men may have known all along that they could not win against the human and material resources of the United States, not to mention those of the British Empire.

They are supposed, then, to have launched their suicidal effort because they had been defeated by China, whom they rate as an inferior power. The resulting "loss of face" or self-respect is so great a shame to an oriental, and especially to a Japanese, that it is not to be endured. Japanese soldiers are expected to die in war, by their own hands if necessary, if they do not win. National suicide would follow the same pattern. So the present rash adventure is explained.

There is doubtless something in this view. But it hardly gives the whole picture. The shrewd and elaborate preparations made by the Japanese leaders certainly suggest that they thought, even in the midst of their fanatical face-saving, that they had a chance to get away with it. Very likely the two motives, face-saving and conquest, could work together in the Japanese mind.

Nearly eighty years ago Lincoln wrote to General Hooker words that we would all gladly echo to our leaders today: "Beware of rashness, but with energy and sleepless vigilance go forward and give us victories."

If Europe, Asia and Africa are the Old World, and America, which was discovered in 1492, constitutes the New World, where does Australia come in, which was not discovered until 1606?

PRURITIS ANI

One of the most distressing and embarrassing ailments is what is called pruritis ani—itching of the skin about the anus or lower opening of the bowel from which issue the wastes from the bowel.

This condition often accompanies and follows menopause—change of life—in women and fortunately the use of ovary extract by injection or by mouth usually gives relief. It is often found in men of advanced years and may be due to the gradual wasting of the prostate gland. In these cases, also, ovary extract often gives relief.

Other causes in all ages are pin worms, vegetable organisms, inflammation of the lower six inches of the bowel, hemorrhoids or piles, little tears about the edge of the opening, and nervousness or emotional disturbances.

In the treatment of pruritis ani, the cause should be found. The use of ointments that allay the itching may cause the patient to postpone visiting his physician as he may think the physician might consider the ailment a trifling matter. Other patients are embarrassed because of the location of the itching, not realizing the prolonged or continuous itching may do considerable damage to the nervous system.

In an article in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. E. Granet makes some helpful suggestions for these sufferers.

After each bowel movement, the skin around the anus should be cleansed with moistened cotton. Drying is done with cotton and dusting powder, cornstarch, or talc. Cotton and talc is carried in clean envelopes for use away from home. When possible, the rectum (last six inches of lower bowel) should be washed out with warm tap water by using a rubber hand syringe. After drying at bed time, half strength Whitfield's ointment should be applied. Whitfield's ointment is the formula of a famous British skin specialist and can be made up by any druggist. As about one-fifth of all cases of pruritis ani are due to fungus infections—such as athlete's foot—this ointment is particularly effective in this type of case and also helps many cases due to other causes.

The thought, then, is that as there is a cause for pruritis ani, this cause should be sought and the necessary treatment given.

Income Tax

Your Federal Income Tax No. 19
WHO IS THE HEAD OF A FAMILY

For income-tax purposes there can only be one head of a family. In addition to being the chief financial support, the head of a family must be related by blood, marriage, or adoption to his dependents, and he must have a legal or moral obligation to exercise family control over them and provide for their care. As such, he is entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person—that is, $1,500.

There are some unusual cases under this classification. A single person, who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood, by marriage, or by adoption and whose right to exercise family control and provide for them is based upon a legal or moral obligation, is the head of a family, and as such is entitled to the exemption allowed a married person—that is, $1,500. In addition, he may claim a credit of $400 for each of such individuals who is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, except if the taxpayer occupies the status of the head of a family solely by reason of the existence of one or more of such individuals, the credit of $400 for one of such individuals is not allowable.

Another example not so much out of the usual is this: A widower who supports in his household his aged mother and his child 17 years of age is the head of a family, and as such is entitled to an exemption of $1,500 and a credit of $400 for one dependent.

Board's Report on Pearl Harbor Implicates President, Secretaries and Army and Navy Chiefs of Staff

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 26.—While the Roberts report on the Pearl Harbor tragedy primarily accuses Admiral Kimmel and General Short, it really, on careful reading, goes much further. The well marshalled recital of sensational facts and circumstances indicts a system. And that system involves by implication, as negligent the President of the United States as well as the secretaries of war and navy and the chief of staff of the United States Army and the chief of naval operations.

For the report reveals that despite telegraphic warnings issued by Washington to the Hawaiian commanders in ample time, there was no follow-up, no check and double check by high officials in Washington to see if the orders to take proper measures of protection were actually being complied with at Hawaii.

From November 26 to December 7—the day of the Japanese attack—eleven whole days elapsed. On the former date it was known to the President and his cabinet that Japan by the United States government demanding, in effect, that Japan should virtually surrender in her war with China. It was a serious message to send to a first class naval power and a serious decision. Unfortunately the contents of the note were withheld from the American people and the news until December 7 but the Roberts report shows that Washington for some time had been sending grave warnings and on November 27 and thereafter actually advised the commanders at Hawaii of impending war.

And yet nobody high up in Washington during these eleven days took the trouble to decide whether Hawaii should be placed under "alert number one" or "alert number two" or "alert number three" or to find out just what form of alert was being ordered in Hawaii. Nobody in Washington took the trouble to ascertain whether the mechanical detection apparatus which warns of approaching airplanes was being operated in Hawaii for a few hours a day or for 24 hours a day and nobody took the trouble to check up and see whether the army and navy commanders were in joint consultation daily on measures of adequate protection for Hawaii against surprise attacks.

This was Washington's job as it would be in any general headquarters responsible for operations in the field where excellent communication facilities exist including the wireless telephone.

Why also were the cable and radio circuits out of Hawaii to

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington.—The potential crisis in motor transportation in civilian life is giving rise to a lot of balderdash.

The idea that we are going to return really to the horse and buggy days, for example, is some of it. Naturally, with a shortage of tires, trucks, and cars, some trucking and delivery companies who can adopt Old Dobbin to their needs are going to do so. The use of horse-drawn wagons for hauling in farms and small communities also will increase. But if just that went to anything like the limits of its possibilities all over the country, the horse market would be as empty as the barn with the open door.

One government expert told me recently that it would take about ten years to breed the nation's horse population back to what it was in the backwood era. Even if a sufficient increase could be developed in time to do any good, there still would be the problem of reviving the manufacture of carriages and harness.

Any demand in great quantities would necessitate a really new industries, with a demand for new machine tools and new craftsmanship. There still would be the problem of priorities.

Another bit of fallacious reasoning is that the nation is going to take to bicycle wheels overnight. Here again, it goes without saying that in some instances where distances are short, a bicycle might help a lot. As an auxiliary vehicle for short runs, it could be made to go far towards saving the family lalopy.

But to consider the bicycle as another face on it. According to the National Safety Council, there now are about 8,000,000 bicycles in the country. The production from the 12 manufacturers in the United States, has averaged something over 1,000,000 a year for the last four years. (When the manufacturers met here recently with OPM officials to design the new standard "victory bike," they estimated their 1941 output at 2,000,000.)

With the "victory" bicycle, of standard design, lighter frame, smaller tires and a maximum of only 25 pounds of steel, this production might be stepped up considerably—if the industry were given priorities on all of its needs. One report here recently had it that priorities didn't want to allot more steel to the bicycles than enough to produce 750,000.

But to return to the 2,000,000 a year or even twice that, it would take from five to ten years to put a bike beside every car in the land—or an average of one to every family. And of course where one car will do for many families, one bicycle won't.

America is a land of distances. Its problems are not at all those of cycling England, where distances are relatively short. The United States has grown and its cities have been built on the prospect of continuing fast transportation.

It is interesting to note that the National Safety Council is on its toes. Even before the prospect of increased cycling was given the stimulus of government recommendation, the Council was out with a national survey of bicycle accidents, their cause and cure.

In the last year for which figures are complete, 1939, there were more than 700 deaths and 34,000 injuries reported from bicycle accidents.

Through the F.B.I.'s traffic division and its law enforcement bulletin which goes to thousands of police forces all over the country, the Council is recommending police registration of all bicycles; license plates issued annually for a 25 cent fee; examination of riders and inspection of bicycles, before license plates are issued.

The train was pulling out and the old gentleman was just settling down comfortably. Suddenly the door burst open, and a young man tumbled into the coach and seated himself, panting and puffing, opposite. The latter looked on with obvious disapproval.

Old Man—You must be very unfit, young man. Why, when I was young, I never panted like that after a run.

Young Man—Perhaps not, but I missed this train at the last station.

Kissing is just like quarreling. It takes two to do it and it's apt to get one pretty hot.

Honesty is not only the best policy, but the best principle. The Bible declares it not meet that man should live alone. A lot of the girls think it would be a good idea for men to read the Bible more.

Pessimistic

"I must admit I'm sorely vexed; No sooner is One Christmas gone Than I must save Up for the next!"

Following is from the back of the pay envelopes used by a Danville, Virginia, building contractor:

1. He who thinks more of what is in the pay envelope than how to do an honest day's labor is far from the Kingdom.

2. Have you thanked God today for the many things you are receiving from him?

3. Are you reading your Bible?

DO TIME FOR LOVE

Chapter 22
Long Story

ROD switched on the lights in the living room of his cottage.

Miss Dorcas looked around her. "Wonderful!" she said. "Young man, if I decide to write my memoirs, you must rent me this place."

"You're more than welcome to it, Miss Dorcas," said Rod. "I won't be using it again for a long time."

"Why not?"

"That's the long story I've got to tell you," said Rod. "The story you probably came to hear. Would you like something to drink first?"

"Have you any Scotch?"

"Yes, I have."

"And soda?"

"Yes, Miss Dorcas," Rod smiled. "That means you want a Scotch and soda, of course."

"Young man, your powers of deduction are remarkable!"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Rod. "I'll go fix the drinks."

He was not gone long, and when he returned Miss Dorcas said:

"I know my niece ran away because of a man, but what I don't know is why you ran away."

"I didn't run away—really," said Rod. "I only went down to Boston."

"But why go in such a mysterious sort of way?"

"You mean you were ill?"

"No, Miss Dorcas, not exactly that," Rod put down his glass. He leaned forward. "I was told, Miss Dorcas, that my heart was in pretty bad shape, and that I also had a very badly injured ear. I was told that in later years I might become deaf."

"But—but—there's nothing wrong with your hearing now—not that I can note," said Miss Dorcas.

"I know, but I was deaf for several weeks after—Dunkirk."

"Dunkirk?"

"Yes, Miss Dorcas. I was there."

"Oh!" Miss Dorcas caught her breath. "You poor boy!"

"I was a flyer," Rod went on, speaking quietly. "I went through all that terrible hell—and when I got back to England, I was pretty much of a wreck. Nothing that one could see, but a bad heart, and the ear condition. It looked as though I was done for—that is, so far as my being any real use to the world."

"Yes," said Miss Dorcas very softly. "Go on."

"I had no one—that is, no relatives, and I hated being a burden over there. The British had enough to do looking after their own, and so I came back here—home."

"Yes," said Miss Dorcas. She laid a hand over one of Rod's. They both had forgotten their drinks. "You came here to recuperate?"

"I came here to fight things out with myself," said Rod. "I wasn't even sure I wanted to recuperate—get well. I had the feeling that after Dunkirk—there was nothing to live for."

"And then?"

"And then I met Lavinia."

"You mean you began to feel differently then?"

Kissed—And Left
"MUCH differently," Rod smiled. "I began to want to live, to get well, to get back into the thick of things."

"Why didn't you tell her all you've just told me?"

"I couldn't—then. I still didn't want to talk about it. And I hated to sound as though I were pleading for sympathy." Rod paused for a moment, and again picked up his drink. "And the more I saw of Lavinia, the more determined I became not to mention love—not to let myself go—until I was certain I did have a future. Then, like a weak fool, I took her in my arms and kissed her."

"And then told her to forget it," said Miss Dorcas. "Yes, she told me to forget it. She had to tell someone."

"I never realized at the time," Rod continued, "how Lavinia would feel about it. I was too angry with myself for forgetting who I was the shape I was in. You see, Miss Dorcas, I still go— I had no right to love a girl, to ask her to marry me. I didn't want to be a burden to a wife—a man with a bad heart, and who might become totally deaf when he was older."

"I understand," said Miss Dorcas. "And so you kissed my niece, and then ran off and left her?"

"I guess it does sound like a contemptible trick, Miss Dorcas," Rod said. "But I certainly didn't mean it that way."

"Of course you didn't. But why the sudden decision to go to Boston?"

"I got a letter in the mail yesterday morning," Rod explained.

"It offered me work in a factory where defense manufacturing is going on. Airplanes. And I do know a lot about them, Miss Dorcas. Well, that letter, and the realization that I was in love with Lavinia, did things to me. I caught a train as soon as I could, and hurried off. I wanted to get everything straightened out, if possible—so that I could come to Lavinia with a proposal."

"You said a while back that you went to your doctor."

"I did. I had a thorough going over—and I'm okay!" Rod's eyes were shining. "I mean the weeks here at Harbor Head have done wonders to the heart condition—and the trouble with my ear has entirely cleared up. In other words, Miss Dorcas, I'm—practically as good as new."

"Thank God," said Miss Dorcas. "I can't tell you how glad I am. Rod, you don't mind my calling you that, do you?"

"Of course not. Only I wish you'd let me call you Aunt Dorcas."

"Goodness me, boy—what else would you call me?"

"You're swell, Aunt Dorcas."

"A mutual admiration society, so it would seem," Miss Dorcas said. And then: "Good heavens!"

"What's the matter?"

"You should be telling Lavinia all this—not me!"

"But I can't. She's gone!"

"Ah, yet, so she has!"

Rod was thoughtful for a moment. "Do you think she'll understand and forgive me, if I see her again?" he asked.

"If she doesn't," said Miss Dorcas, "she's a little idiot."

"Funny thing," Rod went on, "when I got to Harbor Head I was shocked to find it had developed into a fashionable resort. I was a little angry, too—I mean, seeing people so gay, and remembering all I'd seen on the other side, I resented the people at the Inn and I avoided them with a stubborn determination. I wasn't supposed to be dancing or doing anything very strenuous, anyway—so I stayed by myself."

"And gave people the idea you were anything from an escaped criminal to an international spy," said Aunt Dorcas.

Mystery Man

"YES," said Rod. "But I got a sort of kick out of having people think me a man of mystery. That is, I got a kick out of it until Lavinia came along. Then I hated having her not know the truth."

"What made you finally go up to the Inn for dinner, and dancing and bridge?"

"I did it for Lavinia, mostly. I was angry over the way she had been treated. I wanted everyone to see her as I saw her."

Miss Dorcas finished her drink, and set down the glass.

"You really love my niece?" she said.

"Of course I do!" said Rod. "She's the most adorable girl I've ever known."

"You love her enough to marry her?"

"Of course. Why do you think I came barging into the Inn to-night?"

"Then what are you waiting for?"

"Why aren't you going the way to New York to see her?"

"I am going—the first thing in the morning," said Rod. "There's no train before then."

"Do you mind my taking the same train?" Miss Dorcas said.

"Mind! I'll be no end disappointed if you don't take it."

"Very well, we will go back to New York together."

"You can help me."

"How?"

"By pretending to like me a lot. Maybe then Lavinia will forgive me, and say she'll marry me."

"Rod," said Miss Dorcas. "I'm a poor pretender. But I don't have to pretend I like you. I do like you."

All the way down on the train, Manhattan-bound, Miss Dorcas and Rod talked about themselves. They enjoyed doing so. Especially Rod. Not that he did so in any egotistical sense. It wasn't that at all. It was rather as though after being shut up a time, there was great relief and comfort in talking to someone who understood.

"And you know, Aunt Dorcas," he was now saying, as he and Miss Dorcas lunched in the diner, "the boat in which I escaped from Dunkirk was almost exactly like the one I had used at Harbor Head."

"By the way," Miss Dorcas said, "what became of your boat?"

"I let a fisherman friend have it for several days," Rod replied.

Miss Dorcas laughed. "And that Margot Linden and a lot of others have been thinking the government men took it, when they took you!"

The Highland Council of Church Women will hold the January meeting at the Presbyterian manse on Friday, January 30, Mrs. D. S. Haynes, president of the council and hostess, as well as other officers of the council will welcome any woman of the community interested in this fellowship for Christian work.

The Rev. D. S. Haynes took part in the installation services for the Rev. Luke Ray over the Presbyterian church at Millerton, Friday night.

Mrs. Dora R. Haight of Round Lake is the guest of her sister, Miss Eliza Raymond.

Echoing the slogan, "The Kingdom Come—Through World United Hearts Can Do," are already coming back to the workers on this side of the Atlantic from bombed civilians in England. Two of the young ladies whose names and addresses were in kits sent over by Bunkles for Britain the past summer received notes of appreciation at holiday time from women who had been bombed out of their homes. One, however, returned to the ruins next day to feed her cat. This was the woman whose reply to Betty Faust was censored and the address removed, but it was a sincere expression of gratitude. Miss Frances Simpson had a similar letter, also bearing the marks of war and thanks for the necessities which mean double to the recipient at such terrifying times.

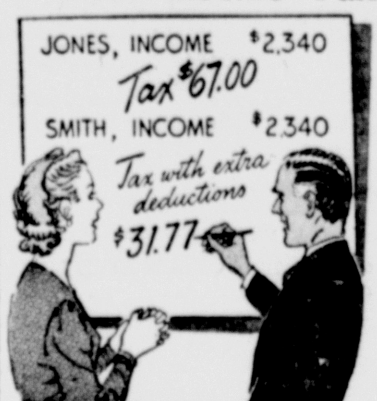

Two Injured as Two Autos Come Together at Milton

Beverly McCargo, colored, and Albert Atkins, both of Newburgh, and William Smith of Milton, were injured in a two-car collision Saturday at midnight. The crash took place near the intersection of the road to Milton and the new four-strip highway in the vicinity of the Marteen cabins, about two miles north of Marlborough.

According to Sergeant Hulse and Troopers Benson and Martin, who made the investigation, the car driven by McCargo, was accompanied by McCargo, was coming from the Milton road, going south and Smith was driving north. They were told by Atkins that he came up to the intersection and stopped and that Smith swerved into their car. Smith, who in addition to shock and lacerations was suffering from an injured tongue, was unable to give his side of the story at the time. McCargo had a lip laceration and Atkins had cuts and bruises. All three were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, for treatment.

Help in Figuring Your Income Tax

Deductions Reduce Normal Tax

March 15 is very close—have you figured your income tax yet? Don't delay. Clearing up questions now may save confusion—and money—later on!

Is your income under $3,000? You might find your tax in one look at the government's simplified tax form! Married, making $2,340, you pay $67.

But perhaps you had expenses that entitle you to special deductions—more than the 10 per cent allowed on the simplified form. Perhaps you paid taxes on local property, on gasoline, auto license plates and your driving license. You can also deduct 10 per cent of your net income, this is called "earned income credit."

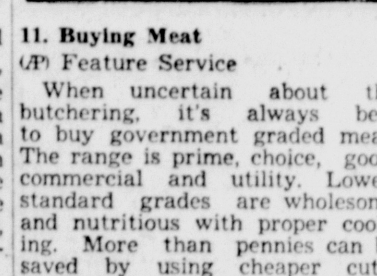

In that case you should use the regular form; your right tax will be much lower than $67.

Sample returns help you in making out this form. First you add up your total income—salary, interest on bank deposits and so on; then you subtract your deductions, your personal exemption—$1,500 if married, $750 if single.

Our 32-page booklet shows you how, with sample forms. Lists allowable deductions and exemptions. Explains credits for dependents, "earned income credit" surtax and tax forms—for single and married persons, business and professional men, farmers.

Send 10c (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for your copy of "Your 1942 Income Tax Guide" to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

HOW TO LIVE FOR LESS

When uncertain about the best butchering, it's always best to buy government graded meat. The range is prime, choice, good, commercial and utility. Lower, standard grades are wholesome and nutritious with proper cooking. More than pennies can be saved by using cheaper cuts: shoulders of pork or lamb, breast of lamb, spare-ribs, stewing beef, stewing chicken, neck, flank and shank of lamb, ox-tail, hearts, kidneys, beef and pork liver. Cheese and egg dishes can substitute for meat two or three times a week. Fish prices and supplies vary. Pork is lowest in autumn; beef usually is fairly steady; chickens, ducks, turkeys, are cheapest in the cold months.

For Work or Play

One of the new overall suits for women in defense, or for play, has adjustable trouser bottoms which can be worn full or buttoned up to hug the leg. It's perfect for bicycling as it eliminates the necessity of guards over your slacks.

This same "defendall" outfit has a dropped back cleverly worked out with buttons concealed beneath the belt. Wide revers convertible into a tunic stand-up collar is another style feature.

Good Taste Today

ONE'S PERSONALITY CAN RE-PAY KINDNESS

A cart-before-the-horse question, asks how a young architect and his wife, who are getting ahead nicely though still down near the starting line in all money-earning assets as compared with their new but very real friends, the Joneses, can keep from being pulled along by them. The letter says:

"Six months ago we moved to this town because of my husband's work on a housing project. We have found ourselves befriended by the kindest and most hospitable people possible to imagine. The only drawback is that these people are 'The Joneses,' as you might say, of this place. They completely outclass us financially, and it has become increasingly difficult to know how to refuse to go dead-head indefinitely with people who won't take 'no' for an answer. We really can't let them give and give and make no return gifts ourselves. And yet to refuse their generosity and sit home alone seems not only unappreciative but likely to lose their friendship. It might even risk my husband's job. On the other hand, can't we go on accepting and not be looked upon as spongers?"

To this the answer is my favorite one of the French proverb: "One pays with one's personality." There are many ways of repaying hospitality that have nothing to do with spending money or giving parties. You evidently have been paying with your own personalities; otherwise they would not keep inviting you. My advice is that you continue to accept their obviously genuine kindness and to make what repayment you can by being appreciative and responsive and by doing your best to help your hosts "make their parties go."

To Those Who Like To Give Presents

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think Christmas was an unsuitable time to give someone a present that was actually not supposed to be a Christmas present? That is, this person had been very good to me on a number of occasions and I merely thought Christmas an especially good time to remember her by sending a present. Someone told me that I probably put my benefactor in the awkward position of feeling that she ought to have given me a present then or at least should put my name on the list for next year. I meant nothing like this at all.

Answer: This angle would never have occurred to me, and even though there is no knowing what may come into someone's mind, I think it very unlikely that your friend can have misunderstood your motive in happening to choose Christmas as the time to say "thank you." In other words, I would not worry about it if I were you!

Twin Delight

Try serving those inseparable twins—bacon and eggs—one a new way. For each egg use one slice of bread, lightly buttered on both sides. Place on it a slice of American cheese (or substitute your favorite type).

Separate the yolks from the whites, whipping the whites to a stiff meringue. Put a fluffy ring of stiff egg white completely around the bread, leaving a hole in the center in which to drop the egg yolk. Place a half strip of bacon over each side of egg white and broil a few minutes until bacon is as crisp as you like it.

Locals Register 44 to 30 Victory Over Glens Falls

Lose to Saratoga Indians by 44-35; Kingston Still Retains Chance of Play-Off Berth

The Kingston Recreations kept their chances of a play-off berth intact over the week-end by dividing two games. Saturday night the Recs defeated the Glens Falls Lions by 44 to 30 but lost to Saratoga Sunday night by 44 to 25.

Manager John Conaty's New York State League Pro Basketball team, tattered by a half-hearted scoring attack in defeating Glens Falls, Jerry Rizzo, Jack McGuirk and Hagen Anderson paced the locals with eight points apiece.

Kingston took an 18 to 12 lead in the first period and made it 35 to 23 in the second session. Both teams were far from score-thirsty in the final period. The Recs collected nine points while Glens Falls poured in seven. Larry Dodick sparked the losers with 10 points.

Over in Saratoga the Recs were humbled by the fast traveling Saratoga Indians by the score of 44 to 35. Hagen Anderson collected 10 for the locals. Opper and Sharkey headed the Spa team with 14 and 10.

John Moscovski and Dodick made their initial appearance with the Recs in the Saratoga clash. The former tallied four points. Dodick went scoreless.

Rice Pounds Out 717

At the Central Recreation alleys Sunday night Freddie Rice, veteran tenpin ace of this city, hammered out 717 triple in the Hudson Valley Bowling League to pace the Kendalls to three straight wins over the Middletown State Hospital aggregation.

Rice pounded out successive games of 248, 245 and 224 to complete his sensational triple. It was a new high individual triple for the league. Joe Ciminaro of the Newburgh Hornets formerly held the mark with 713.

Rice's 700 triple plus was his fifth in his enviable career as a bowler. In the third game in the 10th frame Rice had 29 consecutive closed frames before he left 7 and 9 split on a Brooklyn hit.

Rice finished the night with 23 strikes out of a possible 30. Harold Broskie followed Rice with a 603 triple on scores of 222, 187 and 194. Hod Spaulding's 595 also was a big help to the Kendalls' three wins in a row. Yank Livicorri rolled 602 and Art Gunderson 601 for the Middletown club.

Markson Registers 2989 Triple
In the special exhibition match between the powerful Syracuse Marksons and the Kendalls Saturday night at the Central alleys, the upstate crew slammed out 26, 2989 triple. Kendalls finished with a 2743.

Syracuse couldn't get going in the first two games with small scores of 987 and 951. The third, however, was one of its real products, a 1051.

PLOTTING AGAINST AXIS SUBMARINES

Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum (center), commander of eastern army forces, and Brig. Gen. Arnold N. Krogstad (left), commander of the First Air Force, confer with Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the North Atlantic coastal frontier at their secret quarters in the New York metropolitan area. These men plot strategy against east coast submarine attacks as well as co-ordination of all offensive and defensive operations along the seaboard.

3 Services Guard Eastern Seaboard

Army, Navy and Air Force Coordinate Protection

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—The entire eastern seaboard from Maine to Florida is being defended by coordinated land, sea and air forces ready to mesh into unified action within a matter of seconds.

Even as big guns and planes boomed and zoomed in maneuvers yesterday, establishment of "a closely coordinated defensive and offensive network system" was announced jointly by the army and navy.

The joint statement followed by a day the report of President Roosevelt's special investigation committee which criticized lack of complete army-navy liaison at Hawaii as a cause of the Pearl Harbor disaster December 7.

"Through elaborately prepared methods of liaison," the statement said, a command transmittal of navy, army and air chiefs "are available to each other 24 hours a day, and the forces available to them mesh into unified action within a matter of seconds on the receipt of an alert or any activity by enemy surface or air forces along the Atlantic coast."

Jointly directing the coordinated services are Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, commanding General of the eastern army forces; Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the North Atlantic naval coastal frontier; and Brigadier General Arnold N. Krogstad, commanding the First Air Force.

Officer Is Hurt When Airplane Falls Sunday

Westport, Conn., Jan. 26 (AP)—Second Lieutenant Robert H. Wetherbee, 23, of Minneapolis, Minn., was seriously injured Sunday when his army P-40 airplane crashed and sank in Long Island Sound.

Saved by three men in a boat after swimming in icy water to a nearby buoy, the pilot was taken to a Norwalk hospital where attendants said he had suffered a fractured skull, possible internal injuries and lacerations. His condition was described as "fair."

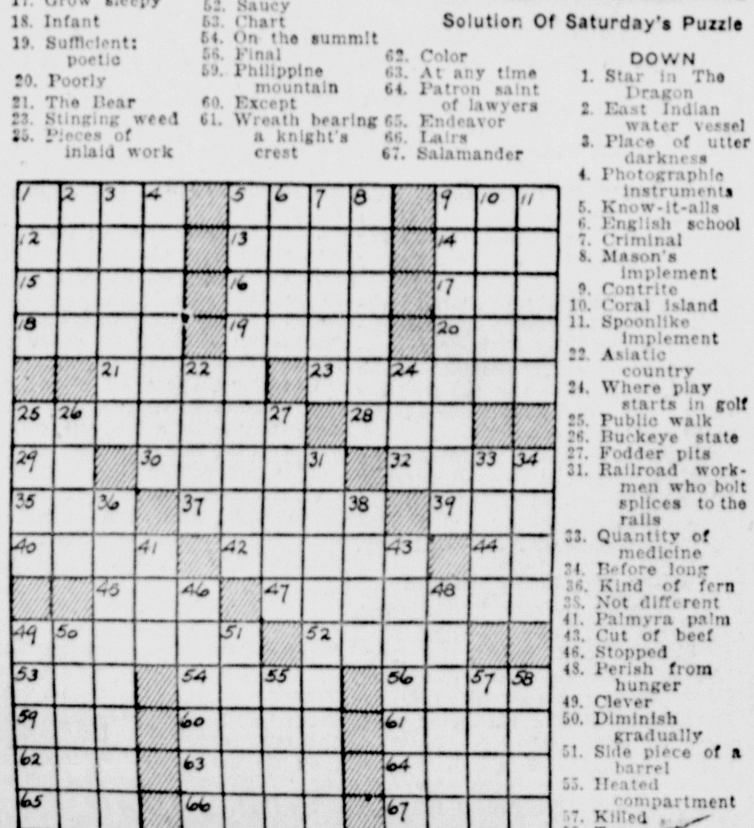

Rescuers included Dr. Lucien Warner, his son, Theodore, and a third unidentified man.

William S. Dallen of 357 Park avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., who witnessed the accident while sitting in his car, said the pilot seemed to be having engine trouble just before the crash which threw him free of the ship.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Name, Please!
Cleveland—Eighty-six families in four apartment buildings near swanky Shaker Square were strictly anonymous today.

During the week-end, thieves stole brass nameplates and other metal identification markers on the buildings.

Owners reported that brass plates could not be purchased now because of war priorities.

Mystery Story

Philadelphia—City detectives were baffled today by the theft of two burned-out elevator coils, weighing 100 pounds each.

The baffling angle was that the coils were taken from a locker near the detective bureau and had to be carried past the bureau door to be removed from the building.

Short Cut

Elizabeth, N. J.—Harry Perrone, 16, saw a chance for a better seat in the Liberty theater. He jumped from a first-floor box to the orchestra floor.

Perrone was treated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital for lacerations of his left leg.

Timely

San Quentin, Calif.—Fifty convicts appeared before the microphone last night as the San Quentin Prison inaugurated a 13-week series of radio programs to acquaint the public with its rehabilitation plan.

The theme song—played by a 16 piece orchestra—was "Time on My Hands."

Where's George?

Roseburg, Ore.—George Grimm's friends gave him a farewell party before he left for the army. The guests arrived, loaded with refreshments and gifts, but George wasn't there.

Attempts to locate him were futile, so the party broke up at midnight.

Then someone remembered—George hadn't been invited.

So Sorry

Milwaukee—Fourteen firemen routed the Edward Garner, Jr., family of six persons out of bed after midnight, ordered them to dress and hurry outside.

The firemen then searched vainly for a blaze reported by a passerby—only to discover after checking headquarters the call was to a home a block away.

The Garners went back to bed.

Dr. Trexler Praises Progress of Local Church

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, speaking yesterday morning at the 45th anniversary of Redeemer Church, Wurts and Rogers streets, commended highly the congregation and pastor, the Rev. Russell Gaebel, for continuing their steady progress. "This church," he said, "has made a vital contribution to the city of Kingston."

"The Christian Church," Dr. Trexler declared, "needs a transfigured conception of her task. Let those who belong to the church remember that in their activities they have a superior purpose to that of a secular organization. The church must not only change lives but change nations. Because of her limited view much of the world's ill today can be laid to her charge. In a survey of per-secuted churches one often sees that they had a limited conception of their task instead of realizing that they have one solution for the problems and ills that afflict mankind. We may berate rulers during these times, but we shall never get the correct view of things until we realize that we, in Christ we shall find the strength that will change men and nations."

RESOLUTION

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Home-Seekers' Co-Operative Savings and Loan Association on January 19, 1942:

RESOLVED—That we, the members of the Board of Directors of the Home-Seekers' Co-Operative Savings and Loan Association of the City of Kingston, N. Y., feel that the Association has sustained a great loss in the recent death of our beloved friend and fellow director

FRANK L. SOUTHARD who also served as an efficient member of the Appraising Committee of the organization.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED—That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the association and a copy transmitted to Mrs. Southard.

TO BE A WHITE HOUSE GUEST

This smiling lad looking at a "Eight Infantile Paralysis" poster in New York, is four-year-old Gerry King, who has been invited by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to have luncheon at the White House on January 30. Young Gerry, a New Yorker, has spent more than three years of his brief life in hospitals for infantile paralysis treatment and has been aiding in the "March of Dimes" campaign by making personal appearances.

Priority Expert Slated to Visit City Tomorrow

Kingston business men who are making appointments to interview John B. Dunn, priority executive of the New York Priorities Field Service, here tomorrow at City Hall, are urged to bring all of their priority problems—no matter how many.

Although Mr. Dunn does not himself grant priorities, he will stand ready to answer questions on procedure, provide application forms, and general advice on the broad and complicated field of priority control. At present such control ranges over most of the industrial products and materials vital to war, including for example: airplane frames, aluminum scrap, defense housing, farm machinery, radios, molasses, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and wool.

So far, several hundred priority orders have been issued by the Priorities Division in Washington. Main types of orders are as follows:

"P" orders—used to assign limited blanket preference ratings to companies or a company engaged in important war work. Example: bomber production.

"M" orders—used to impose priority control over some raw materials. Examples: alcohol, sugar, tin.

"E" orders—used to impose same form of distribution control over equipment. Example: machine tools.

"L" orders—used to restrict the production of less essential civilian goods. Example: automobiles, furniture.

Mr. Dunn, is one of several traveling priority executives who will serve upstate Hudson river industrial communities at fairly regular intervals. Subject to change, he will return for another priority clinic Tuesday, February 24.

Speedy and adequate priority advice, it is felt, will stimulate the flow of materials into Kingston area plants engaged in war and essential civilian production.

Alson Mr. Dunn's periodic visits will guarantee manufacturers in purely civilian industry, a fair and full hearing on applications for needed material.

Therefore Kingston business men seeking priority advice, who have not yet made advance appointments for tomorrow, are urged to do so through Mayor William F. Edelmuth. Time up to half an hour will be allotted for interviews, from 9 to 5 o'clock.

When you have read this newspaper, save it for defense.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Jan. 26 — Miss Florence de Ruyter, who came up from New York to spend the week-end with her mother, entertained a party of friends on Friday evening.

Mrs. Burdett reports the sale by her real estate office of the Aileen McFee studio here to Miss Alice Henderson together with the surrounding land. Also Archie Skolnik purchased the studio belonging to Mrs. Eugene McEvoy. Mr. and Mrs. Constant visited Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Mosher Thursday.

It has recently been suggested that unless there is more interest shown in the films given at Town Hall by the artist group the enterprise will be abandoned.

Lamonte V. Simpkins will attend a convention in Syracuse beginning next Monday. Mr. Simpkins is secretary of the Woodstock Mutual Fire Insurance Association.

The present report on the Red Cross war drive is $1,450.

The next meeting of the Women's Home Bureau will be held at Town Hall on Friday, January 30 beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

Weaving and braiding of rugs will be directed by Margaret Horton and Florence Webster. Women in the neighborhood who are interested in these matters are invited to attend. The president of the society is Mrs. Harry A. Kutzbach.
